

Acknowledgment of Risk

In applying to Dillon International's India Adoption Program, we, the adoptive family, acknowledge the following:

- We have been forewarned that new Guidelines For Adoption From India are forthcoming from the Central Adoption Resource Authority (CARA) in New Delhi, India.
- Dillon cannot estimate a timeframe on when new guidelines may be issued, but does expect that they could be issued within the next year.
- Any new guidelines will most likely change both the current requirements and the current process for adoptions from India, as well as potentially change the type and age of children available for adoption.
- Dillon does not expect for any families in the adoption process to be "grandfathered in" from a former system once the new set of adoption guidelines are implemented.
- Dillon cannot make any guarantees regarding the content of new guidelines to come or whether our family will be affected by those guidelines.
- If the guidelines contain requirements that our family does not meet, we may not be able to continue our adoption process through India.
- Dillon may not have another adoption program for which we qualify to switch our application and adoption process; all fees that have been paid will be for services previously rendered and are non-refundable.
